Contestants And Friends After The Grand Prize

As still another perseverance reward to contestants in the Independent automobile contest, the contest manager announces that there will be another extra vote offer to those turning in special amounts in subscriptions for the next two weeks, beginning Monday, Dec. 13, and ending on Christmas Eve, Dec. 24th at 10 p. m. Following is the scale of subscriptions:

$25.00 worth of subscriptions—100,000 extra votes.
$50.00 worth of subscriptions—200,000 extra votes.
$75.00 worth of subscriptions—325,000 extra votes.
$100.00 worth of subscriptions—450,000 extra votes.
$125.00 worth of subscriptions—575,000 extra votes.
$150.00 worth of subscriptions—725,000 extra votes.
$175.00 worth of subscriptions—850,000 extra votes.
$200.00 worth of subscriptions—975,000 extra votes.

Twenty-two more working days before the close—and as each hour passes, and the end approaches, speculation increases as to who will really win after all. The candidates are all doing their level best to put their own names at the head of the list for the closing count; their friends are asking all their own acquaintances for help and the general public is taking sides in the outcome. The entire territory covered by the Daily Independent is being hastily but systematically recanvassed these last few days, with the result that hundreds of subscriptions which have been earnestly sought throughout teh contest are being secured for the final day. The interested public cannot longer resist the temptation to take the chance and help the candidate of their choice at the last final stand. The result of this sudden enthusiasm on the part of everyone is very gratifying to the candidates who really want to win, and who care badly enough to faithfully guard their high position this week.

MANY ARE FIGURING

Many are figuring over the vote list every night in an effort to decide in their own mind who really has the best chance of all the candidates to win the Overland Touring car. They are figuring by the aid of the vote list who is the most likely winner, and friends have been known to even place small bets on the outcome; however such dope is of necessity mere guesswork, for no one can possibly know the strength of any candidate except the candidate in question, except that candidate might be so indiscreet as to tell some friend "in confidence."

There are some candidates who are neck-and-neck. Will any of these candidates be the winners of the Overland Touring car? It is a question and Saturday night, Jan. 8th will tell.

NOT TOO LATE TO ENTER

It is not by any means too late to enter the contest. In reality the contest is just starting. By this time it must be seen by everyone that subscriptions are the guiding factor in the contest; that if you would win you must secure a few subscriptions at least. Now give the contest a careful study—then enter to win.

Busy Week-End For Local Police

Police court presented a busy appearance this morning, which is nothing unusual following the big pays at the local mills, and as a result the borough is enriched quite a number of good, hard earned dollars and even Burgess Dunlap has $32.00, which may eventually be used to buy Christmas presents for the poor.

Mat Bradshaw was the first prisoner to be called. He attempted to whip the police force after being ejected from a theatre and as a result landed in the police station. His fine was $15 and costs and not having the necessary amount he will be sent to Greensburg for 30 days. Theodore Blama, for a little drunk, got a little fine of $1.00 and costs which he paid.

Andy Handcheroko and Jake Culko had a fight Friday and again on Saturday which cost each participant $7.00. Mike Gallagher, an old offender, was back again and will work three days on the streets, not having $3.00 to pay his fine. Som Robb, charged with being drunk, was given another chance. John Alagna, a driver for the Peoples Furniture store, failed to put a collar on his horse. Officer Albright acted as Humane Officer and placed him under arrest. He paid a fine of $1.00 and costs.

John Tervo was a real bad man Saturday and fell into the police net on two different occasions. He will spend five days in jail unless he can get $5.00 to pay his fine.

James Collins, hobo, was arrested on a charge of drunkenness. He has paid the burgess several visits, but for the next thirty days will be found in jail at Greensburg. Nestor Halinen was arrested Sunday afternoon for being drunk. He must secure $3.00 or spend several days on the streets.

Raid Made on Boarding House

A raid was made on a boarding house at 1228 Morgan avenue. Saturday night and as a result six foreigners charged. with gambling were placed under arrest. Eight men were in the game at the time, but two men made their escape through the windows when the officers broke open the doors. Three of the men appeared for a hearing this morning, and were fined $5.00 and costs, while the other three will forfeit $10.00 each for not appearing. Over $32 was in the pot when the officers arrived. and they collected the money and turned it over to the Burgess. After the hearing the three prisoners who appeared for a hearing wanted to divide the money, but the Burgess decided to hold onto the money until all participants in the game were present.

Young Man Admits Theft

Tom Carnavi, aged 19, was arrested at 4:30 Sunday morning in the railroad alley by Officer Fall charged with being a suspicious character. The young man was brought to the police station and after being questioned admitted to several thefts about town. He had a pair of shoes on that were recently stolen from the Garman shoe, store and admitted that he had broken into the store. He will be given a hearing today before a Justice of the Peace and will probably be held for the next term of court.

Numerous robberies have been reported about town within the past few weeks. Brady's stationery store was entered on Monday evening and on Friday evening the Monessen Five & Ten Cent store was entered. The lock on the Five and Ten was broken and an iron bar removed. The intruders opened practically all the boxes and packages in the cellar but got away with very little loot.

Pick Herron As All American End

Walter Camp in chosing his All American mythical eleven for the season of 1915 honored for the first time a Western Pennsylvania school. He chose two players from the western part of the state and they both starred on the University of. Pittsburgh team. They are Bob Peck, who was chosen for the center position on the first team and James Herron, who was honered with the position of end on the second eleven.

Herron is the son of William Herron, formerly proprietor of the Westmoreland hotel. "Pat," as he was familiarly known here among his friends, starred on the local High school team and has been playing a great game for Pitt during the past two years. He has one more year in school and there is little doubt but what he will be placed on the first All American eleven next year should he continue his sensational playing for another season.

Star Theatre Today

"The Little Gypsy" is a drama of heart appeal and moving human interest. Starred in it is the most delightful of all dramatic stars. Dorothy Bernard, already a beloved favorite of patrons of the William Fox photodramatic features.

"The Little Gypsy" tells the love story of a girl of Romany blood, but gentle breeding for a man whose being appeals to her even to the sacrifice of her highest hopes and ambitions. Screened with the lavishness that marks all the William Fox productions, "The Little Gypsy" contains scenes that transcend anything hitherto beheld in the realms of motiondom.

Among the rugged heather-grown hills of old Scotland, the little gypsy lives out her romance and ultimately attains the happiness for which she has long striven. She defies convention, but in so doing satisfies the longings of her heart. Altogether a masterpiece of photodramatic craftsmanship.

"The Little Gypsy" will be seen at the Star today. 1t

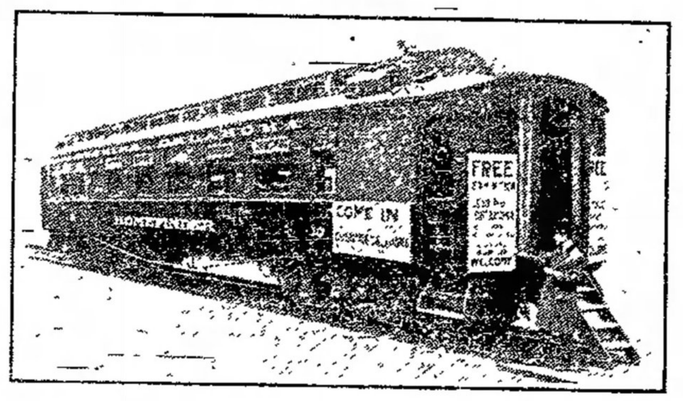
Unique Plan For Booming Town Is Demonstrated Here



Something the like of which has never been seen in these immediate parts, has landed here for public inspection. It is a special car on the siding at the freight station for the purpose of advertising a western town through the east. The car and a party composed of the town's leading citizens, traveled all the way from Cushing, Okla. Its mission is to convince people looking for a home that for undeveloped resources, no town surpasses Cushing. The car is called the "Homefinders."

The "Homefinder," seventy feet long, carries an elaborate agricultural exhibit. including cotton on the stock as growing in the field, fruits, vegetables and an attractive crude oil display showing the various refined products.

Cushing, universally recognized as the world's largest high-grade oil and gas field, has made a phenominal growth in the last thirty-six months, having more than seven times its original population in this remarkably short time. and is becoming more notable each day.

Last year seventy-two brick business buildings and over five hundred residences were built and still there are hundreds of families now living in tents and box car houses.

Cushing is located in the eastern part of the state, between Tuisa and Oklahoma City, and has two big trunk line railroads, the M. K. & T. and the Sante Fe, with two other lines now building in.

Cushing has nine oil refineries in operation and locations made for six others, large cotton seed refineries, cotton compresses and cotton gins, acid factories, machine shops and dozens of oil well supply houses.

Cushing is surrounded by the largest oil and gas wells in the United States and are now offering free gas

Where is Your Port?

Two young men sat on the deck of an ocean liner as it sailed out of the New York harbor. It was midnight. Both were silent in thought. "How big is the sea," interrupted one, "yet how small." See that little raft over there? Well, it's probably been floating over the ocean for months and months and it's still helpless, at the mercy of the waves, at the command of the slightest turn in the wind. "To that little raft the Atlantic is a billowy world of sea without a port. But with this liner it is different. In a few days it will have crossed it without having left its course for a minute. It has a pilot and he's steering it straight along to its port."

And there, as the two men gazed over the starlight sea was unconsciously preached a powerful sermon. Young man, it was a sermon for you. Its significance, which you can surely grasp, is this: The raft didn't have a course. The raft did not have a pilot and the raft will never have a port.

The steamer set out for a definite somewhere and the steamer will keep on until it reaches there. You, young men, may be like the raft or the huge liner. If you haven't a goal in life, you're like the raft that has no port. And if you haven't ambition, steadfastness and character, you're like the ship without a pilot.

If you are the slave of habit, if you are tossed from your course by fast living, extravagance or debt, if you are thrown from your course by temptation, your fate will be that of the helpless raft.

If you will succeed, pick your course first, steam up, make hard work, ambition and character your pilot and there is no port you can't reach. It's time to sail today. Will yours be the port of somewhere or the port of nowhere?

Catch Them, if Possible

Some effort ought to be made to apprehend the automobile thieves who removed from local garages two machines Friday night and made an attempt to break open several others. They are no better than the bold highwayman, housebreaker or bank looter and no effort should be spared to apprehend them and teach them a lesson once for all.

It seems according to reports that they spent a couple of nights attempting to get possession of a machine with which to carry out their plans. They were fearless in carrying forward their ambitions to get hold of the machine, and no one knows what would have happened had one of the car owners been aroused and appeared on the scene to protect his property. Maybe there would have been a cowardly murder and maybe there would have been a bold murder. As it happened no one was injured, but the automobiles were removed and put to malicious use. The cold arm of the law should reach out and get such outlaws and punish them commensurate with their crime.

Man's Natural Tendancy

If anyone says ugly things about you, or falsely accuses you, don't mind it, but just go on about your business, do the best you can from day to day, be honest with yourself and honest with the other fellow and the end will come out all right. The tendency of most men is to be right and do right and if you aid the sources with the least resistance it is not hard to get along in this rough old world, rough as it is.

But we are sometimes called upon to deal with those void of reason or who can see life only from the personal angle and they are not willing to meet reason half way, and such persons very often bring about their own undoing. It's best to meet the world half way. Resort to reason rather than passion and if every person would govern themselves according to those rules society would be benefitted and there would be fewer enemies and more friends in fighting the great battle of life.

An Important Witness

By JOHN Y. LARNED

Jimmie Conolly while fishing in a small lake by the railroad, hearing a train coming, looked up as it passed and saw the engineer, instead of having his hand on the throttle and his eyes on the track ahead, dancing a hornpipe on the floor of the cab Jimmie was only thirteen years old. He was wise enough to understand that such conduct was irregular, but it did not freeze him with horror as it would an older person At the moment there was a tug on his line, and he pulled out a fat pickerel. For the time being he forgot the dancing engineer

Mrs McCoy, the wife of the engineer of the train on which this scene occurred, lived near a station at which her husband was accustomed to stop for water. The train time at the station was 12 23, and she was accustomed to take her husband's dinner to him at that hour. On the day Jimmie Conolly saw him dancing a hornpipe Mrs. McCoy started earlier than usual from her house on a hill sloping down to the track with the dinner.

Before she had made half the distance she was astonished to hear the train coming. A few seconds later, going at a speed far greater than usual, it passed her, ignoring the station completely. As it went by she saw a sight that first caused her to drop the dinner pail, then topple over in a dead faint Her husband was struggling with the stoker, who hit him on the top of the head with some iron instrument and dropped him on the cab floor

Jake Rogers, the stoker, stopped the train at the next station, five miles distant from the water tank McCoy was found in the cab dying with a fractured skull Rogers reported that McCoy, in whom he had recently noticed signs of insanity, had suddenly gone crazy and had dashed onward at a terrific gait Rogers, whose back was toward the engineer, turning suddenly, saw him dancing on the cab floor while the train was tearing along under no guiding hand Rogers attempted to get by McCoy, who tackled him and, being the stronger man, was about to throw him from the cab. The fireman's life as well as the lives of hundreds of passengers was at stake Rogers had a wrench in his hand and struck his adversary on the head with it, intending to stun him. Instead he fractured his skull, killing him

Mrs McCoy was sent for and as soon as she saw Rogers hysterically accused him of murdering her husband The fireman was put under arrest and in time indicted for the murder of the engineer. There was no corroboration of his story further than certain passengers bore witness that they thought the train was traveling rather fast But this counted for very little. Mrs McCoy, who was very bitter against Rogers, found several sympathetic friends who were willing to testify that Rogers had been at enmity with her husband and had been heard to make threats There was some foundation for this, for Rogers wished to be made an engineer, and McCoy for some reason unknown except to himself declined to help him secure the coveted promotion

Rogers was tried, and the evidence was strong against him. Only one person was found to testify that he had noticed strange actions on the part of McCoy, while a dozen swore that he was as sane as any man The story told the jury by the bereaved wife through tears had a telling effect. Rogers was an orphan and had no one to influence the jury in his behalf by weeping for him. The trial was nearing an end, and the consensus of opinion was that he would be convicted though there was sympathy for him by some of the passengers who had been on the train when the tragedy occurred and who considered that in any event they had had a narrow escape

The trial did not take place near where the murder had been committed, and Jimmie Conolly heard nothing about it. One evening his father came in to supper and remarked

"Rogers has been convicted."

"Who's Rogers?" asked Jimmie.

"The stoker who killed the engineer last August"

"What engineer?"

Mr Conolly told his son the story of the murder. It brought back the remembrance of the sight he had seen while fishing on the lake

"I seen an engineer last summer," he said, "dancin' in his cab while the engine was runnin' wild"

That was all Jimmie had seen, but it impressed his future as of possible importance in the McCoy case. The next morning he called up by phone Rogers' legal defender, who interviewed Jimmie and by comparing dates and clock time discovered that Jimmie had seen McCoy on the day of the murder

Rogers had not been sentenced, and the case was reopened. Jimmie was called to the stand, and after counsel for the defense had established the essential facts the boy told how he had seen the engineer dancing on the cab floor and the train running wild Since the train passed the lake on which the boy fished several minutes before it reached the tank station Jimmie's testimony corroborated that of the stoker

Rogers was acquitted, and his first act after being freed was to take the witness who had saved him in his arms and kiss him

Rogers was presented to the engineer and received a handsome purse made up by the passengers whose lives he had saved. Jimmie in time became his fireman and is now a division superintendent on the road

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle.

Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action, yet always effective.

They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities

You will know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets by their olive color. 10c and 25c per box All druggists

A CURE FOR BRONCHITIS

We Have Been Selling in Monessen for Many Years a Remedy we Guarantee

Please read the following letter and we promise if you buy a bottle of Vinol from us and are the least bit dissatisfied, we will cheerfully refund your money.

Woodstock, Ill. "I suffered from bronchitis, had a very bad cough and a pain in my chest, was weak and tired all the time. It seemed almost impossible for me to go on with my work. I tried different remedies without benefit, also cough medicines but my druggist recommended Vinol, and it gave me almost instant relief. Its continued use cured my bronchitis and built me up so that I feel like a different man."—Charles Batts.

The reason that cough syrups fail in such cases is because they are palative only, while Vinol removes the cause, being a constitutional remedy in which are combined the healing elements of fresh cods' livers, together with tonic iron and beef peptone. It strengthens and revitalizes the entire system and assists nature to expel the disease. Our faith in Vinol is shown in the above offer.—Hirsch Drug Co., Monessen, Pa.

ONLY ONE

The Record in Monessen is a Unique One

If the reader has a "bad back" or any kidney ills and is looking for an effective kidney remedy, better depend on the remedy endorsed by people you know. Doan's Kidney Pills have given great satisfaction in such cases. Monessen citizens testify to this. Here is a case of it:

H. R. Wilbur, 131 McKee avenue, Monessen, says: "I contracted a heavy cold which affected my kidneys. My back was sore and lame all the time and I had to have help to turn in bed. My whole body was like a board. I often had to have someone help dress me. Shooting pains darted through my body and I couldn't do my work. My body became bloated. The secretions were profuse in passage and contained sediment. I had dizzy spells and hot flashes, and I was miserable in every way. I doctored for years but didn't improve. The first box of Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me and two boxes practically cured me. Now and then I take Doan's Kidney Pills as a kidney tonic and give them credit for keeping me well."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Wilbur had. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

He Didn't Sprout Horns.

The first Japanese to drink milk did so with misgivings lest he sprout horns like a cow. That was in 1861. The man that took that big chance is Mr. Tsubol, who is still alive and absolutely free from horns

At that time Mr. Tsubol was an apprentice. He became ill of a disease that baffled the skill of the Japanese physicians, so his master called in Dr. Hepburn, an American physician, who then lived in that district. Dr. Hepburn prescribed milk, one bottle to be "taken" every morning The poor boy, believing that the growth of horns was inevitable if one drank cow's milk, begged his master not to make him take the doctor's prescription, but his frantic pleas were denied.

There was considerable difficulty about getting milk then because, as there was no demand for milk—the greater part of the population sharing the boy's belief that its consumption was sure to raise horns—there was no dairy or milkmen. Finally some was obtained from a Japanese who cared for a cow kept by a foreigner.—Japan Advertiser.

The Horned Lark.

Looks like Satan, the horned lark does, with his two black horns of feathers sticking out on top of his head He wears a suit of a grayish brown touched with pink. A black curve over his eyes and another black crescent under his chin help give him a wicked aspect. Like satanic topknot, the two tufts of black feathers on the back of his head, gives him the name He's the horned lark

But really he's not so bad as he looks You know that the minute you see his brown eyes and hear him sing. The farmer knows he isn't such a wicked bird too. The horned lark eats all kinds of noxious insects, weevils and flies. If he gets tired of his diet he will start in to pick up the grass hopper and cut worm crop

Sometimes he will visit an oat field, but he doesn't cause enough damage to get his picture in the rogues' gallery as a dangerous thief.—Philadelphia North American.
